COUNCIL DEMANDS CONTRACTOR PROCEED WITH PAVING OR SHOW CAUSE WHY

Council has taken steps to either force the contractor to complete his street paving or get off the job. At the last bond issue election $110,000 was voted for paving purposes and to liquidate a floating debt but the war came on and all paving was held up, at least temporarily, and despite the fact that much of the curbing was set, the paving was supposed to be delayed on account of the failure of the contractor to procure brick. The streets were ordered closed for the time being and while several months have passed since anything has been done, it now happens that the brick are being hauled along the streets. Council at the last meeting passed a resolution that will give the contractor official notice to proceed at once to pave the streets according to contract or the bondsmen will be notified that the contractor has not lived up to his agreement with the borough.

It happens that the streets under paving contract are either very hilly or badly needed on account of congestion in traffic. Lower Donner avenue is one of the sections that is badly needed and if there is a way to get the work done now, council proposes to find that way. Other streets are very hilly and the dirt that is being washed down is costing hundreds of dollars for its removal.

ROBBED HIS LANDLORD, SENT TO JAIL

Before Justice J. B. White this morning, was arraigned Pete Hatz, a Page mill worker, charged by Mike Wash, a boarding boss of 277 East Schoonmaker avenue, with the theft of $45.00 from his person.

Hatz, it appears, was a boarder at the Wash house, and evidence was to the effect that the former saw the latter going down Schoonmaker avenue and catching up to him near the Union hotel. They walked to a point in the neighborhood of the Brunswick hotel where Hatz knocked Wash down and took the money from his pocket.

Information was later made and Officer Boyer arrested the accused man, holding him for a hearing. He admitted he took the money, but stated he intended returning it.

Evidence was produced to the effect that several watches had recently been missing from the boarding house, but as this could not be proven, it was eliminated from the case, and in default of $30 bail, Hatz was committed to jail at Greensburg to await the action of the grand jury.

THE LIBERTY SING TO BE INTRODUCED

The One Minute Liberty Sing will be allied with the Four Minute speech in rallying the people of Pennsylvania to the support of all war programs and activities. Community singing has proved its value in creating patriotic "atmosphere" and the speaker who addresses audiences which have been stirred by war songs finds them more receptive to his appeal.

The Pennsylvania Council of National Defense, which has been directing organized patriotic speaking in support of the government has arranged to conduct patriotic singing on the same state-wide basis and to couple the singing and speaking. Hereafter there will be no Liberty Sings without Liberty Talks, nor will there be patriotic speaking without patriotic singing. Arrangements are under way to merge organized singing which has been conducted by independent associations with the organized speaking and singing directed by the Pennsylvania Council of National Defense.

John F. Braun, State Director of Community Singing will be assisted in this work by Courtenay Baylor, who has been directing the Liberty Sing Commission of the War Camp Community Service, Philadelphia, which is being merged with the Pennsylvania Council.

The One Minute Sing is to be conducted in theatres and photoplay houses where the Four Minute speakers are regularly featured. A verse or chorus of a patriotic song will be thrown on the screen and will be sung by the audience, by way of introducing the Four Minute speaker.

Four Minute speaking is always concentrated upon a set theme. One Minute Liberty singing will be similarly directed. The psychology in having thousands of singing audiences throughout the state deriving the same patriotic inspiration from the song at practically the same moment will be appreciated. This method of inspiration will be carried out in spectacular ways.

On special occasions, campaigns may be greatly assisted by the dramatic effect of having, for example, 1,000 great community "sings" in all parts of the state join in the same chorus at exactly the same moment. And this dramatic appeal can be reinforced by having 1,000 speakers make precisely the same speech at the same moment, following the singing.

Organized singing and organized speaking are taking a recognized place in the successful conduct of the war, and the Pennsylvania Council plans to develop the utmost efficiency in these patriotic stimulants.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOT BALL TEAM ON TWO WEEKS CAMPING TRIP NEAR POINT MARION

The members of the High school football team left this morning for Point Marion where they expect to camp for two weeks. Their camp is located about a mile above the town and the boys say it is an ideal location.

Coach S. S. Townsend and Mrs. Townsend are with the boys and while there, considerable practice work will be indulged in preparatory to the opening of the 1918-19 season, and every effort will be exerted to get in shape to maintain the most excellent record of last season.

The camp is located not far from the Monongahela river, so the boys will have the advantage of morning, noon and evening bathing and along with other sports, will be well able to amuse themselves as well as entertain their friends from Monessen who will visit them during their stay.

The team boys in camp are Halford Thomas, Arthur Thomas, Trevor Thomas, Chas. Lewis, Frank Bumbaugh, Wallace Hood, Milton Hoffman, John Richard Baldwin, Wm. Allison, Vere Warman, Lester Lear, Thos. Glasgow and Clifford Jones.

TWO LOCAL PHYSICIANS IN WAR ZONE

Dr. W. D. Hunter one of the first Monessen physicians to enlist after America entered the war against Germany, has arrived overseas. Dr. Hunter for more than a year was in the base hospital at Camp Lee, and it was on account of the scarcity of physicians at this cantonment that his trip overseas was delayed. When he was home a few weeks ago to visit his family and straightened up business affairs, he had knowledge that he would soon be sent across. Dr. T. B. Herron who left Monessen only a few days ago, is expected to depart for overseas this week. When he enlisted it was with the understanding that he would be dispatched across within a very short time. Both these physicians were anxious to help end the ruthless career of the Hun.

IN COURT ON CHARGE OF LARCEMY

Harry Goldsmith of Donora, appeared in court at Washington, Pa., and plead guilty to two charges of larceny. He was charged with entering the Eagles' Lodge room at Donora and taking $47 from the cash register. This occurred on Aug. 4, 1918. He was also charged with taking a leather pocketbook from the rooms of the German Beneficial Union at Donora, which contained $117. This was on April 13, 1918. He claimed that he was intoxicated at the time and had no defense to make. He is a member of both organizations. He was sentenced to restore the stolen property and pay the costs, a fine of $1 and 60 days in jail in each case.

Five cents a ton may be added to the applicable mine price of coal delivered directly from mine tipples to locomotive tenders the fuel administration has ruled. Other compensation may be fixed by agreement between the operators and the railroad receiving the coal.

TRIED FOR SHOPLIFTING

Today in Washington county court the trial of Mikt Mavy and Lizzie Honisko, opened, the charge being "receiving stolen goods." During the latter part of last week a number of merchants from Charleroi and nearby towns appeared before the grand jury and true bills were found.

Some time ago these members of the Houisko family were arrested by Charleroi police officers on a charge of shoplifting, and a search of the home revealed a large quantity of dry goods, shoes and other property which had evidently been stolen from the stores of Charleroi and Monessen and surrounding towns.

CAMP MEETING IS OPENED

Bentleyville camp meeting began yesterday with a large attendance. A number of families occupied cotteges for several days before the opening, and now the cottages are nearly all taken, and yesterday, the opening day, witnessed the largest opening, attendance in many years. The grounds have been repaired this summer and accommodations are more agreeable than at any time during the association's history. A large number were there from Monessen.

Pleasure Cars to be Curtailed

Manufacture of pleasure automobiles may be curtailed 75 per cent. from September 1 to next January if a proposition being considered by the War Industries Board is adopted. Steel men have urged that steel must be conserved and have suggested the saving could be made in this industry.

Has Gone to Training Camp

Sergeant T. Raymond Sharpnack of Charleroi, of the University of Pittsburgh training detachment, has gone to the reserve officers' training camp at Camp Lee, Va. He was one of the ten successful candidates appointed from the Pitt detachment numbering 1,500 men. Sergeant Sharpnack also qualified as an expert mechanic at the students department of the Pittsburgh camp. Roy has many friends in Monessen who extend the glad hand and wish him God speed, success and safe return to home and friends.

Farmers Hold Harvest Home

Saturday the farmers of Rostraver township held their annual harvest home and picnic. Hundreds of people assembled in McClain's woods near Smithton, and spent the day socially in the woods that has become so famous for successful gatherings. A band funished music and a speaking program consumed the early part of the afternoon. Hon. Jas. S. Beacom of Greensburg, was the chief orator of the day, his talk being on the war, and many who were there speak of his address as being one of the most pointed, practical and impressive they ever heard him make.

Monessen Boys Meet Old Friends

Mrs. Phoebe Riey of Sixth street hill, has received a letter from her son, William Riley, now in France. Friends also received a letter from Bob McKelvey, also in France. The boys state they had an enjoyable trip "going over" and were having a good time generally at the time the letters were written. The boys say fishing is fine and they are taking advantage of it to the fullest extent.

Riley's letter states they have met "Dutch" Alexander, "Tiney" Cassidy, Bill Neary and Bohn Burnett, and all were well and in the best of spirits.

FRANCE

The July 12th issue of the "Stars and Stripes" in France prints the following editorial which does much credit to America and her soldier boys now taking their place side by side and shoulder to shoulder with the French and English armies in the great drive against Germany in the mastodonic strike for freedom for all against autocracy and tyranny. The editorial from "The Stars and Spripes" follows:

"A million Yankee soldiers are fighting for the great idea which is called America, but they would not be here at all were it not for France, for all she is and for all she has been through more than a century of freedom

"It is difficult to imagine that the United States would ever have sent an army to fight on European soil in a war in which France was not engaged. More and more clearly the American people see now that they are waging once again their old, old battle for independence, but it is doubtful if they would have given their assent to the war if France had not been endangered, if their entry had not meant fighting side by side with their sister republic.

"America's admiration for France is one of the fairest pages in history. You will look in vain through the chronicle of the nations for another such example of one country loving another. And when America has added the extra force needed to drive the invader from her borders, France can thank the sentiment for her which has grown in American hearts from those anxious days when French aid settled the outcome of the American revolution.

"She can thank all the devoted friends who from the time of Franklin, in many a column and in many a class room, have preached the cult of France. She can thank, above all, her own men of genius who have made the French spirit eloquent and sung to all the world the beautiful song which is France. It would be interesting for example, if one could measure in terms of lusty American regiments now going into battle against France's enemy, the ultimate recruiting force of such a masterpiece os Daudet's 'The Last Class.'

"Now when ancient French towns are appearing as new names in American school books, when millions of Americans are storing or will store the memories of their youth with the things of France, the old comradeship between the two Republics seems destined to be deepened and the prophet, straining his eyes along the vesta of a thousand years, can see the shadow of no quarrel between them."

TANKS vs MACHINE GUNS

The German army has placed a tremendous reliance upon machine guns. Our advancing troops have reported the number of these weapons held by the Germans as almost innumerable.

In the trench fighting of 1917, when the British made a superhuman effort to advance their lines at the cost of 500,000 men, it was machine guns that held them up. In those days a 1,000 yar dadvance was called a good one. After the men had bucked into the trench line for about a mile, they would find the way full of little concrete shelters for machine gun fighting. The advance would be stopped.

As a result of the effectiveness of this form of defence, the total gain netted by the British in a half season of advance on the Passchendaele ridge was only about five miles. At that rate it would take them 20 years to drive the Huns out of France and Belgium.

Now our troops have been able to advance as much as seven miles in a day. It looks as if the machine gun problem had been fairly well solved The tanks have been the biggest factor in doing it. These little armored cars suffer little from machine gun fire. They are too agile for big guns, and little guns can not penetrate their armor.

These armored tanks can come very close to winning the war. As a means of offence they are even more effective than airplanes. The airplane is absolutely necessary for scouting, for finding out what the enemy is up to, and for directing artillery fire. But when it comes to breaking a trench line full of machinery gun nests, the tank is the thing. Henry Ford and others are building a lot of them. But we can't build any too many. With a line of them behind every point on the trench line, our troops could advance alomst any time and the Boche could be kept constantly on the run.

The Russian people begin to show signs of waking up the morning after the night before.

A military man can immediately tell to what division a soldier belongs by glancing at the cord on his hat, but to the average citizen the color of the hat cord denotes little or nothing

It is an interesting feature to be familiar with, especially now when so many soldiers are seen all over the country, and anyone who takes the trouble to learn the following list will be rewarded by being able to satisfy his own curiosity respecting any soldier he happens to see without having to ask questions: A cord of light blue signifies that the wearer belongs to the infantry; red denotes artillery; yellow, cavalry; buff, quartermaster's corps; orange and white, signal corps; red and white, engineers' corps; red and black, ordnance, black and white, field clerk; maroon and white, medical corps; black and gold, officers; silver and black, adjutant general's clerk; green, instructor home guards, and green and white, home guards.

GREAT BIRDS OF OTHER DAYS

Bones Discovered Prove That in the Miocene Period They Were Truly of Enormous Size.

In so far as birds are concerned, some of the oldest fossils, in the matter of time (Miocene), which have fallen into the hands of science, are those representing the great, flightless, fossil avian giants of Patagonia in South America. They belong to the phororhacidae, R. W. Shufeldt writes in the Scientific American.

Judging from such parts of their fossil bones as have been found, they were evidently great terrestrial birds of prey. Some of the species were small, but this is made up for by the others; and in the case of one of them (brontornis) it had a thigh bone considerably larger and longer than that of an ox.

Of all the remarkable flightless birds of this group, however, was the giant phororhacos. It must have been over eight feet in height, with a skull bigger than that of a full grown horse, and much deeper from above downward. We know little or nothing of these birds or what led to their extinction. With its great hooked beak and powerful claws of great size, phororhacos must have been a terror to the animals upon which it preyed. Skulls and some other bones of this bird have been discovered.

THE REAL PILLAR OF SOCIETY.

IT'S a good rule that works both ways. When the farmer supports the home merchant and the home merchant supports the farmer, you have the real pillar of society. The farmer would have a poor farm if he did not have a good home market. And the merchant can't build up the home market alone. He must have the support of the farmer. Likewise, the merchant has poor business when the service he gives is not the best possible. The trade must be even. The services must be mutual. So, the picture you are looking at now should be true from both ends. If it doesn't quite suit you this way, turn the paper around. Now you have seen the real pillar of society. The farmer upholding the merchant and the merchant upholding the farmer.

Soldiers Welcomed In France

By Francis Rogers

(of the Vigilantes.)

Our solders were welcome in France in July when they first landed, bringing with them the tangible evidence of America's military participation in the war, and they certainly have not yet worn out their welcome. In the towns and villages where they spent the winter they made a good impression. Some of them misbehaved, to be sure, but most of them succeeded in winning the good will and respect often the affection of the natives, to whom they brought not only a certain amount of comercial prosperity after 3 years of ever-increasing poverty, but also the moral support of their good-will and friendliness.

Last March an American soldier, walking through the streets of Toul, noticed an old woman and a little boy struggling to push a loaded wheelbarrow. She was too old and he too young for the task. The soldier stepped up and trundled the barrow to its destination. The old woman thanked him fervently

"But that is what we Amercans are here for; we are come to help France bear her burden."

"Thank God, monsieur, that you are here, I know not what we would do without you."

At Eeaster I was passing through a village where theRainbow Division had until recently been quartered Several of the natives enquired eagerly for news of "les Americains" and asked us when they were coming back. One middle-aged farmer said, "I miss those boys as if they were my own Several of them used to come up to the house and help me with the wood and water and play with the children Evenings they would come and sit with me and my wife around the lamp We could not say much to each other because they speak no French and I speak no English, but we managed to get along Since they went away they have sent me some postcards They don't write anything on them, but I get their meaning Please say you think they are coming back to us soon"

Our soldiers get along famously with the Fench poilus, too. One sees them walking arm in arm or sitting about the tables in the cafes or in the Y. M C A. conversing in a kind of jargon that is neither French nor English but that serves their conversational purpose A Montana boy showed me a Croix de Guerre given him as a souvenir by the French soldier who had worn it Such happy, easy comradeship is good for our point aims and speaks well for the future relations between the two great republics
